Seasonal Transitions at 88th Yard

Written by Danny Keen

With the changing seasons here in Colorado, we are also experiencing many changes at the 88th Yard. As we transition from summer to fall and then winter, our focus shifts from construction products like cement, fly ash, and lime -heavy staples during the warmer month- to winter products such as ice slicer and calcium chloride. Ice slicer is a cost-effective and eco-friendly granular deicer primarily used for roadways, while calcium chloride comes in a liquid form and is utilized in more industrial applications.

This transition is made seamless thanks to the hard work of our incredible team at 88th. Pat Hollenbeck takes the lead in winterizing all our unloading equipment, ensuring smooth operations with minimal interruptions during the freezing temperatures. Misael, our yard foreman, serves as the helmsman, guiding us through these seasonal changes. Our dedicated switch crew—Jesus and Francisco—ensure that all terminals are well-stocked, so our customers experience no disruptions in service. We also rely on Raul, Andrew, Mark, Eliel, Mystr, Misael Jr., and Scott to expertly manage the terminals. Meanwhile, Staci handles the scales and assists with secondary office duties, ensuring we consistently deliver Rock Solid Customer Service.

The hard work and dedication of this outstanding team are essential for smoothly managing seasonal transitions. Cheers to the amazing crew at 88th Transload!
